Disclaimer

Test Figures contained in our literature and on our web site indicate the performance of the products, however site conditions, building construction and installation standards may affect the final performance achieved.

Therefore Trim Acoustics can not take responsibility for any installed system or the outcome of any sound test carried out on these products.

To ensure best results, install all acoustic products to manufactures specification, it is also important that all possible flanking paths (other routes sound may be passing through the building) are identified and eliminated prior to installation of acoustic products.
